

PRIVACY POLICY

SEABRAZ IPR & CORPORATE LAW

Effective Date: 01/05/2026

At SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law (“Seabraz”, “Firm”, “we”, “our”, or “us”), we are committed to protecting the privacy, confidentiality, and security of the personal information shared with us through our website, communications, consultations, and professional services.

This Privacy Policy explains how we collect, use, store, process, and protect your information when you access our website, contact our team, or engage with our services. By using our website or submitting information to us, you agree to the terms of this Privacy Policy.

This Privacy Policy has been prepared with reference to the structure and legal standards reflected in the uploaded reference documents.

1. INFORMATION WE COLLECT

We may collect and process the following categories of information:

1.1 Personal Information

We may collect personal information voluntarily provided by users when contacting us, submitting inquiries, requesting consultations, or availing our professional services. Such information may include your full name, phone number, email address, company or business details, address information, and any identification or registration details required for legal, corporate, intellectual property, or compliance-related services.

Information submitted through contact forms, consultation requests, emails, WhatsApp communications, or other modes of interaction may also be collected and maintained for professional and administrative purposes.

1.2 Professional & Service Information

In the course of providing legal, intellectual property, corporate, compliance, or advisory services, we may collect information and documents relating to professional matters handled by the Firm. This may include trademark, copyright, patent, or design-related details, corporate and business registration information, legal agreements, notices, compliance records, commercial documents, and consultation or case-related materials shared by clients or prospective clients.

Such information is collected solely for lawful professional purposes and for providing efficient and effective legal and advisory support.

1.3 Technical & Website Usage Information

When users access or interact with our website, certain technical and usage-related information may be collected automatically through cookies, analytics tools, server logs, or similar technologies. This information may include IP addresses, browser type, device information, operating systems, website navigation activity, pages visited, date and time of access, and other technical data relating to website usage.

Such information helps us improve website functionality, user experience, security, and overall service performance.

1.4 Communication Information

We may maintain records of communications and interactions made with us through website inquiry forms, email correspondence, telephone calls, WhatsApp communications, consultation requests, feedback submissions, support inquiries, or other professional interactions.

These records may be used for responding to inquiries, providing requested services, maintaining professional documentation, improving communication efficiency, and ensuring proper client support and service management.

2. PURPOSE OF DATA COLLECTION

The information collected by SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law may be used for responding to inquiries, consultation requests, and professional communications initiated through our website, email, telephone, WhatsApp, or other communication channels. Such information may further be used for providing legal, intellectual property, corporate, compliance, registration, documentation, advisory, and other professional services requested from the Firm, including the preparation and processing of applications, filings, registrations, legal documentation, compliance procedures, and related professional assistance.

We may also use the information for communicating important service-related updates, procedural requirements, document requests, status updates, or other information necessary for the efficient handling of professional matters. Additionally, the information may be maintained for internal administrative purposes, professional record management, service improvement, website functionality, security monitoring, client support, and compliance with applicable legal and regulatory obligations. The Firm may also process such information for protecting its legal rights, maintaining professional standards, preventing misuse of services, and ensuring lawful and efficient professional operations. We collect and process only such information as is reasonably necessary for legitimate, lawful, and professional purposes.

3. CLIENT COMMUNICATION POLICY

At SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law, we value the privacy, comfort, and professional experience of every client, prospective client, and website visitor. We do not engage in excessive follow-up calls, repeated promotional messaging, spam emails, unsolicited marketing practices, or unnecessary communication intended to pressure individuals into availing our services.

Any communication initiated from our side shall be limited strictly to responding to inquiries, providing requested professional assistance, sharing essential service-related updates, requesting necessary documentation, or communicating information that may be legally, professionally, or operationally required for the proper handling of a matter. We strongly believe that clients should be able to make informed decisions comfortably, independently, and without pressure, solicitation, inconvenience, or intrusive communication practices.

4. CONFIDENTIALITY OF INFORMATION

All information, documents, communications, and materials shared with SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law in relation to consultations, legal matters, intellectual property filings, corporate services, compliance procedures, or advisory assignments shall be treated with strict professional confidentiality and handled with appropriate care, discretion, and responsibility.

Our team comprises qualified advocates, legal professionals, consultants, and domain-specific experts who are bound by professional ethics, confidentiality obligations, and responsible handling practices. We are committed to maintaining the privacy and integrity of client information to the fullest extent reasonably possible under applicable laws and professional standards.

5. DATA SHARING & DISCLOSURE

SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law does not sell, rent, trade, commercially exploit, or unlawfully disclose personal information shared by users, clients, or website visitors. Any information collected by the Firm shall be used strictly for lawful, professional, administrative, or service-related purposes in accordance with this Privacy Policy.

However, information may be disclosed where reasonably necessary for providing requested professional services, processing legal or regulatory filings, coordinating with government authorities, statutory departments, regulatory bodies, trusted third-party professionals, consultants, or service providers assisting in the execution of services. Information may also be disclosed where required under applicable law, court orders, legal proceedings, regulatory requirements, or where such disclosure becomes necessary for protecting legal rights, maintaining security, preventing fraud, unlawful activities, or safeguarding the interests of the Firm, its clients, or the public. Any such disclosure shall be limited strictly to the extent reasonably necessary for legitimate professional or legal purposes.

6. DATA SECURITY

SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law implements reasonable, appropriate, and industry-standard security measures to safeguard personal information, professional records, communications, and documents against unauthorized access, misuse, alteration, disclosure, loss, or destruction.

We maintain professional safeguards, restricted access practices, and administrative measures intended to protect the confidentiality and integrity of information shared with the Firm.

While we make reasonable efforts to maintain secure systems and protect information transmitted through our website, communications, or digital platforms, users acknowledge and agree that no method of internet transmission, electronic communication, or data storage can be guaranteed to be completely secure or immune from risks. Accordingly, the Firm does not warrant or guarantee absolute security of any information transmitted electronically and shall not be held responsible for breaches or unauthorized access arising from circumstances beyond reasonable control.

7. DATA RETENTION

SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law retains personal, professional, and service-related information only for such period as may be reasonably necessary for providing requested services, maintaining professional records, complying with applicable legal or regulatory obligations, resolving disputes, enforcing legal rights, or fulfilling legitimate administrative and operational requirements of the Firm.

Upon completion of the relevant purpose for which the information was collected, or upon expiry of any applicable retention period prescribed under law or professional practice, the Firm may securely delete, archive, anonymize, or otherwise dispose of such information in a manner considered reasonably appropriate and secure.

8. COOKIES & WEBSITE TECHNOLOGIES

The website of SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law may use cookies, analytics tools, and similar website technologies to improve user experience, analyze website performance, understand visitor interactions, maintain website security, and enhance the overall functionality and efficiency of the website. Such technologies may collect limited technical and usage-related information including browser details, device information, website activity, and user preferences.

Users may choose to disable or restrict cookies through their browser settings or device preferences. However, disabling certain cookies or website technologies may affect the functionality, accessibility, or performance of specific features or sections of the website.

9. THIRD-PARTY LINKS

Our website may contain links to third-party websites, platforms, or external services for informational or convenience purposes.

We do not control or assume responsibility for the privacy practices, content, or security of third-party websites. Users are encouraged to review the privacy policies of such external platforms before sharing personal information.

10. CHILDREN'S PRIVACY

Our services and website are intended only for individuals legally competent to enter into binding agreements under applicable laws.

We do not knowingly collect personal information from minors below the age of 18 years. If any such information is identified, reasonable steps shall be taken to remove it from our records.

11. USER RIGHTS

Subject to applicable laws and reasonable verification requirements, users may have the right to request access to the personal information maintained by SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law, request correction or updating of inaccurate or incomplete information, request deletion of information where legally permissible, or withdraw consent for certain data processing activities where such processing is based on consent.

Any such requests may be submitted through the contact details provided in this Privacy Policy. The Firm reserves the right to verify the identity of the requesting individual and may refuse, restrict, or limit requests where permitted or required under applicable laws, professional obligations, regulatory requirements, or legitimate legal interests.

12. LIMITATION OF LIABILITY

While we maintain reasonable security and confidentiality measures, Seabraz IPR & Corporate Law shall not be liable for:

- Unauthorized access caused by factors beyond reasonable control
- Cyber-attacks, malware, hacking, or technical failures
- Breaches caused by third-party service providers or external systems
- Losses arising from user negligence or unauthorized sharing of information

Users acknowledge that internet-based communications inherently carry certain risks.

13. CHANGES TO THIS PRIVACY POLICY

SEABRAZ IPR & Corporate Law reserves the right to amend, modify, update, or revise this Privacy Policy at any time, without prior notice, in order to reflect changes in legal requirements, professional practices, operational procedures, website functionality, or service-related policies.

Any revised or updated version of this Privacy Policy shall become effective immediately upon publication on the website of the Firm, unless otherwise specifically stated. Continued access to or use of the website, communications, or services after such modifications shall constitute acknowledgment and acceptance of the revised Privacy Policy by the user.
